According to reports, L. Ron Hubbard, Scientology founder, lived here from about 1984. He died here (after receiving injections of the psychiatric drug "Vistaril"), on January 24, 1986. This ranch was purchased in the name of "Thomas O'Brien" by deed recorded on August 11, 1983, and was transferred to Norman F. Starkey (Executor of the LRH estate) on Feb. 27, 1986. Mobile homes here are assessed as "Wildwind Manor."

(Coyote Creek Lane has a common road easement, and is used also by neighbors.

Scale: Above Line is about 600 feet

There are numerous neighboring residences, particularly to the North, East and West. Locations shown are approximate, based on 1980's official records and satellite photos.
